

Today's top-notch electrical contractor should bring you a total mastery of multimedia technologies, systems, and platforms that go far beyond electrical systems. These include rapidly evolving communications, telecommunications, and teledata systems for the information age, sophisticated instrumentation and controls and industrial process systems, information technology installations, LAN and WAN networks, Internet systems, electronic security and access systems, emergency power supplies, and uninterruptible power sources, FEC ensures that its members stay ahead of the rapidly advancing state-of-the-art with a continuing program for knowledge sharing in technical and professional development areas.